You're never too young to achieve

Ideally Engineering graduates refer various authors' book to prepare for their semester exams, but Abhishek S. Nagarajan has put an end to this cliché by co-authoring 3 different books on C, C++ and Operating Systems when he himself was a student pursuing Computer Science Engineering in Amrita School of Engineering.

Click here to view the books Co-authored by Abhishek

Abhishek, while receiving best outgoing student of the batch

Back in the day, children were taught only the basics of computers in schools. Computer science was an additional subject and did not form a major part of the grading in the curriculum. Nevertheless, Abhishek's father made him join a computer course in his tender age, where the youngster grew interest in coding.

During the college days, Abhishek has published numerous research papers on image processing, augmented reality, machine learning and embedded systems. Seeing such massive talent, various colleges in the country invited him to deliver guest lectures to their students as well as to their teaching staffs.

Abhishek now works as a Data Scientist in a leading MNC and he says, "Patience and Passionate to discover new things are the attributes that helped him to achieve the impossibilities" and signed off.
